

ABSTRACT

A human-carried portable medical tank assembly includes a tank in a tank-holding assembly, such as a pouch. A shoulder strap is attached to the tank-holding assembly. At least a portion of the strap is configured to flex during movement of the human carrier of the tank-holding assembly to such a degree that the perceived weight of the tank and tank-holding assembly is lessened.